

Dear Valued Customer:

Due to the demand from our customer base, we are getting an early start on pricing programs for the 2018-2019 heating season. Based on the current price structure it is time to look ahead and plan for next winter's heating oil purchase. Holliston Oil is currently offering three options to price and pay for your heating oil. Last year, heating oil prices were at their lowest point during the summer months. The price of heating oil continued to rise in the Fall and Winter. Today we find heating oil prices much higher than last Summer. We cannot predict prices since they are a function of world events and beyond our control, but we can offer price protection and payment plans that will fit your needs.

This year Holliston Oil is offering an “Open Enrollment” period to sign up for one of our pricing programs. The open enrollment period will run from 6/25/2018 until 09/01/2018. The program has three options Fixed Price, Capped Price and Pre-buy. The open enrollment will work is as follows:

- Call/email Holliston Oil M-F 7am-5pm to get the most current “lock-in” Price
- Decide to lock/cap the current price or wait and call back the next week for an updated price (prices could continue to rise or prices could fall during the period)
- Prices may be updated on a weekly basis
- Once you commit to a price program, detailed contract information will be sent to you immediately via fax, email or US Mail and must be returned immediately.

Please review the programs listed below carefully. If you wish to participate in a program simply call (508-429-2075) or email (info@hollistonoil.com).

1. Capped Price - Pre-buy or ten month budget (Beneficial if prices go up or Prices go down) Holliston Oil highly recommends the cap option with downside protection which will allow you the best pricing all the time no matter what direction oil prices go.
2. Fixed Price - PRE-BUY or BUDGET (Beneficial if prices go up)

Budget plans require 10-monthly payments and will begin by September.

(NOTE: We can automatically charge your credit/debit card of choice thus ensuring timely payments)

Budget Cap Program – You can cap your price and make ten monthly payments. Your price will never exceed the cap price but if the market price of heating oil falls (as it did during 2016-2017) you will pay the lower price. There is a 15 cent per gallon non-refundable fee to purchase downside protection. Non-refundable cap fee is due with signed contract.

Pre-buy Cap Program - You purchase your oil up front when you sign your contract at a discounted price. There is a 15 cent per gallon non-refundable fee to purchase downside protection. The Pre-buy is also available at a discounted Fixed Price (no downside protection).

Most frequently asked questions on Price Protection Programs.

Is it really a contract?

Yes. We agree to supply a specific number of gallons to a specific location at a pre-determined price for a limited period of time with a beginning date, expiration date, and specific payment terms. It is an agreement. It is a contract, and parties (both Holliston Oil and consumer) that breach could be found liable and subject to fines in U.S. Courts. Customers are obligated to accept delivery and pay for the oil they order in accordance with the terms of the contract.

Last year, my neighbor had a lower fixed rate than I had. Why?

We update our program pricing weekly. It is not uncommon for prices to go up or down $0.04 - $0.06 on a daily basis. A customer who calls in this week may get quoted a different price than one that had called last week. The price on each program may be different.

What happens when the contract expires?

Your account remains on automatic delivery until you request a change (in writing) in your status. After the contract rate has expired, we continue to deliver fuel to your house at our daily market rate. With automatic delivery you will avoid the possibility of running out of fuel.

What happens if I run out of fixed/capped price gallons before the contract ends?

After we have delivered the quantity of contracted gallons you ordered, your account will remain on automatic delivery, and oil deliveries will be charged at our daily market rate. Our contract allows our customers the flexibility of choosing how many gallons they want to lock in (up to 95% of the prior year usage), but requires the customer to be on automatic delivery until the end of the contract. If you wish to terminate automatic deliveries after the contract has expired, you need to do so in writing, or by e-mail.

Two years ago I was paying my monthly budget payment simultaneously to overage, Can this be avoided?

Maybe!! This past winter of 2017-2018 was colder than normal. Many customers exhausted their budget gallons and also had deliveries of additional gallons. Customers that did not make their first budget payment in July were making budget payments into May and June. To avoid the possibility of having a budget payment due together with an overage invoice, we suggest you begin your budget payments in July and have the ten payments made by April.

Are fixed price programs always a good deal for the customer?

No, not always. Nobody can predict prices, they are a function of world events, you cannot expect that your locked-in rate will always be lower than the daily rate every single day of your contract term. During this past winter prices declined. Customers with a fixed rate were paying a price higher than the daily market rate. A customer with a capped rate with downside protection will always pay the lowest rate.

Why should I consider a price program?

If you want to budget your oil purchase at a fixed monthly payment, you should consider a program. If you fear that prices will rise, and you cannot tolerate the risk of rising prices for heating oil next year, you should consider a program.

What happens if I have a credit balance on my account when the contract expires?

First of all, that is your money. We will leave it on your account; it can be applied to future deliveries, services or the following year's budget.

What happens if oil prices fall during the term of the contract?

Fixed price customers will continue to pay the rate that they agreed upon until the contract expires, their price is FIXED. Customers, who have a capped price, purchase Downside Protection. Their price will always be the lower of the contract price or the Holliston Oil Daily Market Rate.
